3. A few ideas to remember:

- The modern office emerged along with the Industrial Revolution when people migrated to cities in search of work.
- The most expensive office occupancy is in Hong Kong: It costs on average $265 per square foot.
- Before the Industrial revolution, wages were based on how much people made rather than on the amount of time they spend.
- Shifting back again to people being paid for their function and not for the time they turn up.
